Leith

Located just north of the city centre, with a catchment population of c. 50,000, Leith has become one of Edinburgh's most vibrant neighbourhoods. Previously ranked the fourth coolest neighbourhood in the world by Time Out magazine, it is widely seen as the beating heart of Scotland's creative scene, known for its lively food culture, thriving start-up community and rich mix of arts and culture.

The area is home to major arts venues including the beautifully revived Leith Theatre and creative hubs such as The Biscuit Factory, which provides performance space alongside workspaces for more than 30 creative businesses. Food and drink are also central to Leith's appeal, with an outstanding range of restaurants and bars including The Leith Arches. Impressively, the neighbourhood is home to three Michelin-starred restaurants, contributing to Edinburgh's total of seven.

OT sits at the heart of this thriving waterfront district, with a dedicated tram stop directly outside the main entrance providing convenient connections to Edinburgh city centre and beyond, including Edinburgh Airport.

OT Reimagined

Ocean Terminal - Edinburgh

OT, previously known as Ocean Terminal, was a purpose-built shopping centre which opened in 2001 offering in excess of 420,000sqft of retail and leisure outlets anchored by tenants such as Debenhams, BHS and VUE cinema.

Under its new owners OT has undergone a significant transformation with the demolition of the former Debenhams and adjacent Multi-storey car park, creating a centre relevant to the surrounding area offering amenity led retail and adding to the already strong and popular Leisure offering.

The revised footprint extends to c. 270,000sqft, with in excess of 700 car parking spaces, anchored by leisure and F&B operators including VUE Cinema, Gutterball Family Entertainment Centre, Club 3000 Bingo, Pure Gym, The Royal Yacht Britannia, Nandos, Frankie & Benny's, Starbucks, Greggs plus others.

Retail is anchored by popular High Street names such as H&M, Boots, Holland & Barrett, Wed2B, Tesco, Build A Bear, Trespass and more, including independent occupiers.

The cleared site following partial demolition now has detailed planning consent for 531 residential homes with secure courtyard gardens and raised terraces, retail and commercial spaces.

Surrounding Developments

Leith has undergone widespread regeneration over the past decade, transforming the historic port district into Edinburgh's most dynamic residential neighbourhood. An array of mixed-use developments have either been recently completed or are currently under construction, significantly enhancing the area's appeal to residents and investors alike.

The £200 million tram extension project represented a cornerstone of Leith's rejuvenation, creating a direct transit connection between Leith and Edinburgh city centre. Leith boasts an impressive array of bars, restaurants and leisure facilities that cater to both its growing residential and tourist populations.
